The Young Water Professionals of the SA AWA Branch invite you to attend the 2016 YWP Forum for a topical and thought provoking day discussing innovation in the water industry.

The changing environment of the water industry requires flexibility to manage the expected and unforeseen challenges. Innovation can thrive with the creation of an environment where new ideas can be heard and supported, but what risks do we need to be wary of?

Water professionals from all sectors and industries are invited to come together to consider how innovation can and will change the different aspects of the water industry.

Come along to hear experienced speakers from a wide variety of backgrounds discuss the risks and rewards associated with innovation in the water industry, from both technical and professional development perspectives.

An afternoon workshop will tie together the learnings of the day, allowing for attendees to network while being inspired to innovate over a drink and some nibbles.

We look forward to seeing you there!
